THE ADVOCATE.

A writer says there is no reason why slop should be made sour before feeding it to pigs.

Since animals are two-thirds water, it is reasonable to suppose that they should have a clean and full supply.

In sowing grass seed, use plenty of seed. It is more economical to pay out a little for seed than to have patches of weeds over the meadows or pastures.

The air that is breathed, as well as the food and water consumed, flavors the product. Practically it makes no difference whether your butter is spoiled by ferments or microbes.

A sash set in the roof of the henhouse will let in as much light as twice as much glass in the side. It will also cool the house more quickly unless closed with a tight shutter at night.

Prof. Lazenby, of the Ohio Station, is of the opinion that the perfect apple will be seedless and coreless. It takes as much mineral elements to grow one pound of apple seeds as 190 pounds of flesh.

The English law requires that a man who peddles milk shall keep it constantly stirred, to the end that the first customers may not be served all the cream from the top of the can, at the expense of those served later.

The little wren is one of the most useful of birds to the farmer. It is constantly at work destroying inju- He could have shot it easily, but openings so small that larger birds cate. can not get in.

This is an excellent time for feeding the sunflower seed to laying hens. It is excellent food for them, if given as a change twice or three times a week. The seeds assist in regulating the digestion, preventing constipation and serving the same office as linseed meal when used as food for stock.

A cement cellar floor that may be readily cleaned with mop or broom and that excludes vermin is a welcome improvement. The destruction would go far toward meeting the expense of a floor to exclude them.

A Boy's Answer.

At a Sunday-school service a clergyman was explaining to a number of smart little little urchins the necessity of Christian profession in order to properly enjoy the blessings of Providence in this world, and to make it apparent to the youthful mind, he said:

the pipes and every convenience are enemies. I dislike them very much. so harmful to corruptionists' plans, and in good order, but I get no water. But (this with a baleful glance) I love Can any of you tell me why I don't them. And I shall ever be ready to get any water?"

"Can no one tell me what I have neglected?" reiterated the good man. looking at the many wondering faces

"I know!" squeaked a little fireyear-old. "You don't pay up!"

Cloth For Hot Bed Frames

Take pale linseed oil, three pints; augar of lead, one ounce; white resin, four ounces. Grind the sugar of lead, with a little of the oil, and then add the remainder, and the resin; reduce the materials in an iron kettle over the fire, and then apply it hot with a brush. The more nearly the oil and resin are to colorless the better the light will be transmitted. By applying hot it hardens well on cooling.-Indiana Farmer.

Charley Stull, the noted Dick's river trapper, who last year brought to this office a fine specimen of otter, succeeded in capturing another of these animals Friday morning. This one measured three and a half feet from tip to tip, and weighed about fifteen pounds. It was caught on the bank of the river near the mouth of Clark's run. The old colored man sold the other for six dollars. He says he has often watched this fellow come from the river of mornings with a fish in its mouth and eats its breakfast. rious insects. 'There was a day,' he said, on which an ancestor of mine was sentenced to be hanged.' Loud applause greeted this tragic statement. The orator went: 'I have no doubt it was for stealing.' Considering the way in which the MacCregor's of old got their living, the suggestion was a very probable one. It was received with thunderous cheering. Then, But as he was a distinguished thief, he was allowed to select the tree on which he was to be executed; and with great presence of mind, he selected a gooseberry bush. PURE DEMOCRACY!

The kind that made our country one of the greatest powers among nations, is what is now needed to combat the crisis prophesied by that true patriot, Abraham Lincoln, who said:

We may all congratulate ourselves that the cruel war is nearing its close. It has indeed been a trying hour for the Republic: But I see in the near future a crisis arising that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. As a result of the war, corporations have been enthroned and an era of corruption in high places will follow. The Money Power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people until all wealth is aggregated in a few hands, and the Republic destroyed. I feel at this moment more anxiety for the safety of my country than ever before, even in the midst of war.

There is no disguising the fact, that the condition now confronts us which caused the patriot Lincoln so much anxiety.
